

A TEC, a member of the Loesche Group, is one of the leading specialists in the field of pyroprocess optimization in the cement industry. Our innovative technologies help our customers to minimize production costs and reduce emissions. With headquarters in Austria and subsidiaries as well as representations in other countries, we have a global presence. To strengthen our team, we are looking for a:

Head of Mining (m/f)

We seek an ambitious Mineral Resources Engineer with experience in mining operations for working in Portuguese speaking countries.

Team workability, readiness to learn and develop as well as a expertise in our industry and a profound knowledge in English and Portuguese is required. A willingness to travel and to live abroad is essential.

Your responsibilities:

- You ensure the economical and resource-conserving extraction and treatment of limestone and marl in accordance with the requirements of cement production
- You draw up the economic, technical and legal production plans and pay attention to environmentally mining
- You create efficient structures and processes for mining activities
- Your guarantee the operational readiness and safety of the used mining machines and the occupational safety of the employees
- You ensure compliance with all legal requirements and obtains various operationally required regulatory approvals
- At the implementation of the operational process in the mining industry, you ensure that they always follow the current state of art.

Your profile:

- Mineral Resources Engineering education
- Experience at least 5 years in Mining Industry
- Knowledge of cement clinker and cement standards
- Willing to work abroad in an international team
- Language skills: English (mandatory), Portuguese (highly recommended)
- Willing to work abroad in an international team

Are you interested in being a part of our team and supporting our position in the worldwide cement pyroprocess industry? We offer a motivated working group, the possibility of international travel, flexible working hours and development chances.

If you are interested in this position please send your application including your salary expectations via e-mail to e.goeres@atec-ltd.com

We are looking forward to your informative application.

www.atec-ltd.com